

Most people uninformed about breast density risk, study finds

Data from GE Healthcare's "Value of Knowing" survey, conducted in 10 countries, showed that about 75% of respondents were unaware that high breast tissue density is associated with increased risk of breast cancer. The study also found more than half of respondents could not list six common signs of the disease.