

Study: Women Who Received Sample Breast Density Notifications More Likely To Undergo Breast Cancer Screenings.

HealthImaging (1/8, Applegate) reports that research indicates that “women who received sample breast density notifications were more likely to undergo breast cancer screenings.” The findings were published online in the Journal of the American College of Radiology.